the second oldest military organization in this country, will spend next Friday in Richmond, and will be entertained by the military officers of the city. The Phalanx is upon its annual tour, in the course of which it will visit Luray, Chattr.nooga, Atlanta, Richmond, and Wash-The delegation en tour is 375 strong, and will parade through the streets of the city, the Richmond Blues

General Israel Putnam, from whom the Putnam Phalanx derives its name, was farmer in the eastern part of Connecticut, having moved there from Massa chusetts in his early days. Early in life he distinguished himself among his neighbors by the daring act of pursuing he succeeded in conquering her-a story familiar to every American schoolboy distinguished himself for his bravery; was captured by the Indians, but released by ench officer. His love for the military and his desire to protect his family and and his desire to protect his raining and neighbors from the assaults of the In-dians ted him to the early conception of a neighborhood military organization. This primitive organization for the com-mon neighborhood defence was at the time styled the Putnam Phalanx. The exact date of the organization or the de-value of the same are entirely unknown. tails of the same are entirely unknown. History has been devoted to General Put-nam individually, and sheds no light on this organization.

Putnam's zeal was so great for the defence of his country that, upon hearing of the need of assistance at Bunker Hill, he dropped the reins on the backs of his horses, left them and his plow in the field, where he was at work, and immediately started for Bunker Hill. The date of this first organization is sup-posed to be about 1765.

THE PRESENT BATTALION.

The organization or the reorganization of the present battalion dates from August 9, 1858, and was perfected at Hartford at that time. Its perfection was hurried and completed for the immediate purpose of welcoming home Colonel Thomas H. Seymour, a distinguished fellow-townsman, known as "the Hero of Chepultepec," in the war with Mexico, and who had represented the United States as Minister to the Russian Court with marked ability, promotive of the greatest international relations to the mutual advantage of both countries. The organization at the time was made up of 153 persons, representing the best citizens and various professions of the city, of Hartford and State of Connecticut. The battalion at the present time numof Hartford and State of Connecticut. The battalion at the present time numbers upwards of 300 members, which is made of representatives of all portions of the State, and quite a few from other States of the Union, there being at the present time two members of the battalion resident at Atlanta.

The uniform of the Phalanx is strictly and purely Continental. The chapeau is patterned after that worn by Napoleon and General Washington. The walst-coat is wholly buff, or Continental yellow, open nearly to the walst, in which opening is inserted the Continental ruffle, as worn by General Washington, the buttons being plain gold. The coat is blue, trimmed with buff or Continental yellow, with gold buttons; knee-breeches of black velvet, black stockings, and boots with yellow tops, making one of the most showy and striking uniforms seen at the present age, and when in line upon parade, with its celebrated drum and fife corps, in red uniform, playing the old Continental martial music, reminds one of the early history and struggles of our forefathers for the independence of the nation. The Phalanx is the oldest and most popular military organization in America. Nearly all of its members are Free Masons, and all of its members are Free Masons, and a majority of them are Knights Templar, thirty-second degree Masons, and Mystic

Officers of the Battalion.

Major Henry A. Bickford, who commands the Phalanx Battalion, was born in Vermont in 1815, and after having completed his studies removed to Hartford, began the practice of medicine there in 1875, and soon rose to a position of prominence. Major Bickford served three years in the late war. He has been connected with the Phalanx for a number of years, and was the unanimous choice as major at its last annual election. He is a man of soldierly bearing, and is well liked by every member of his battation. Major Bickford is a Knight Templar, thirty-second-degree Mason, and Mystic Shriner.

Captain H. B. Phillorick, chief of staff, is a prominent builder of Hartford. He is an old soldier, and was appointed chief of staff of the Phalanx under Major Blanchford, to which position he has been appointed continually from that time enward. He has represented the city of Hartford in both branches of the Court of Cormon Council, and has always been an honored citizen of that city. Captair Philbrick is also a Knight Templar, thirty-two-degree Mason, and a Mystic Shriner.

Captain J. N. Shedd is the commander of the First Company. He has been a resident of Hartford since 1874, and is the junior member of the firm of Webb & Shedd, Carmen. He has been a Lember of the Phalanx a number of years, and is one of its most popular members. He has been once elected major-commandant, but refused to accept the office, preferring to remain as captain of the First Company. Captain Shedd is also a Knight Templar, thirty-two degree Mason, and a Mystic Shriner.

Captain W. H. Gassett is captain of the Second Company of the battalion. He is a manufacturer of felt and straw hats in the city of Hartford, in which business he has been engaged at the same place for the last thirty years, and has always been a successful business-man. He has been identified with the Putnam Phalaux for many years, having attained the position of captain of the Second Company from that of private, ha OFFICERS OF THE BATTALION.

The Decision of Justice Crutchfield Correct.

To the Editor of the Dispatch: To the Editor of the Dispatch:

I have read the card from Dr. Jud. E. Wood, president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, in your Sunday's edition; also that in a recent No. of the State, in regard to the dog case, and I am surprised that he should deem it necessary to appeal to the public after a careful investigation in court resulted in the discharge of Dr. John Pollard and Mr. E. T. Gwaltney.

This case appears to have been vigor-the public after a careful investigation in court resulted in the discharge of Dr. John Pollard and Mr. E. T. Gwaltney.

This case appears to have been vigorously prosecuted by the attorney for the society. I have reviewed the evidence of the twenty-live or more witnesses who testified before Justice Crutchfield. as reported in the city press, and find that only a few of them saw the little dog immediately after it struck the ground, and all of them say that it got up and walked off as soon as the clothesbag and shoe-box were cut away. A number of the witnesses who saw the dog just after it was thrown out of the window testified that they did not think it was lame. The evidence showed that the dog was in a shoe-box with its head and feet out, and that it weighed, perhaps, from five to seven pounds. While this costume may have made the little animal appear grotesque, yet it doubtless protected its body from any injury.

I do not believe that the statute in question was ever intended to cover such a case as the one under review. But the alleged offence was a misdemeanor, if it came within the provisions of the act at all, and Dr. Pollard and Mr. Gwaltney were necessarily to be held as innocent of a crime until proved to be guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. Criminal statutes are to be construed strictly in those parts which are against defendants, but liberally in those which are in their favor. And this statement of the construction to be placed upon the law governing this particular case, as well as all other criminal charges, must make it appear to any unbiased mind that Justice Crutchfield could not have, under the law and the evidence, failed to discharce the defendants.

I notice that Dr. Wood proposes to use his efforts to have a lawyer elected to fill the office of Police Justice. With some conciderable knowledge of the gentleman who has held this office for a number of years, I have come to know he is impartial and fearlers in the discharge of his official duties, and, it appears to me, always uses his be

It has been said Mrs. Ameile Rives Chanler was discovered by Thomas Nelson Page, and possibly that may be true. It is a fact, however, that she made her first start in literature through the assistance of the accomplished London correspondent of the New York World. He met her in Richmond, and afterwards took one of her stories to a magazine editor, with the remark that he was willing to stake his literary reputation on its being worthy of publication. Some of her music was also published at the same time, but that attracted no attention.—The Pocket Magazine, Irving Bacheller, editor.
